

Erin Hebert has been practicing immigration law since 2014, and has been working in the immigration field since 2010. She graduated cum laude, Order of the Barristers from the University of Washington School of Law in 2014. During law school, she interned at the Federal Public Defender's Office in Seattle, in the Chambers of the Hon. Ken Schubert at the King County Superior Court, at the VAWA Unit of the Northwest Immigrant Rights Project, and was selected as a Legal Writing Fellow for UW's legal research and writing program. She was selected for the UW National Moot Court Team and the Moot Court Honor Board. She received Pro Bono

Honors awards for Service and Leadership for her extensive volunteer work as a case manager and co-president for the Immigrant Families Advocacy Project. She is fluent in Spanish, having lived in both Central and South America. Ms. Hebert's practice focuses on family-based immigration with waivers of inadmissibility, removal defense, humanitarian relief, and a growing number of employment and education-based immigrant and non-immigrant visas.
